7	I do not like the CPM curriculum being used for math. The only reason it is functional in our district is because we have exceptional math teachers. It has too much emphasis on heterogenous grouping for work. This reduces the learning to all students, makes struggling students feel stupid, and places undue burdens on the students who quickly understand the material. It does not allow for enough individual learning. The grouping encourages students to cheat and bully others if they don't "allow" the cheating". It does not make learning accessible to all students.	3/27/2014 8:31 PM
8	The textbooks in history, government, and economics were published in 2005 and 2006. If they get past November, the government books will not have the last two presidents!	3/27/2014 7:48 PM

When your child has a 43% in a class--at what point was the teacher going to contact the parent!!!! I found this out on my own!! I was extremely upset that my child's grades could have went even further down before it was thought to contact me--no excuse!!! 1	My sons 2nd grade class had 28 students last year. This year K and 1 classes are well above 20. Plus there are combo classes at lower grades. This district has the money as shown by Admin pay and reserves, but does not make small class sizes a priority.	4/1/2014 12:22 PM
2	Some classes are overcrowded. There are many behavior problems that make it difficult for students to learn and the teacher to teach because of the time it takes to deal with these students.	3/30/2014 9:36 PM
3	This depends upon the class. Some classes are very reasonable while others are overloaded.	3/30/2014 9:14 AM
4	At the high school yes, grades 4-6 I would like to see smaller...	3/28/2014 5:08 PM
5	Kindergarten and first grade need to have smaller classes. 28 students in First Grade is crazy. These children are still learning to read and need to get the basic reading skills down. Combination classes and classes larger than 18 or 20 at this grade level is counterproductive to their entire education. They very small groups in order to learn the skills adequately at this age, partly due to their inexperience with school and the academic skills, and partly due to their age span. Remember, some children have not attended any school prior to kindergarten and do not have any skills at all. (No, I am neither a first grade teacher, nor a kindergarten teacher. I am a parent of a kindergarten student, though.)	3/28/2014 5:07 PM

Needs Assessment Survey for Local Control Accountability Plan (English)

6	I agree, however it would be nice to go back to class size reduction (not an average, but an actual 20 or less per classroom) at the K-3 grades.	3/27/2014 8:31 PM
7	In fact, in some cases, it may even be a bit on the low side.	3/27/2014 7:48 PM
8	Impressed with small class sizes in the wake of budget cuts in the past years.	3/27/2014 3:53 PM

4	Not always. Especially at the high schools.	3/30/2014 9:36 PM
5	Our current teaching staff is great. However, when new positions or situations occur in the district, it is often difficult to find "talented professionals" to apply. When we are attempting to recruit people that live out of the area, they often choose other options due to our location, pay, and benefit costs.	3/30/2014 9:14 AM
6	The salaries are low compared to other schools	3/30/2014 6:52 AM
7	with the poor pay for classified and for subs that are needed on a daily bases, it is a wonder that we can run the school at all.	3/29/2014 8:34 PM

Needs Assessment Survey for Local Control Accountability Plan (English)

8	At the elementary school they have because they are local, the high school concerns me, especially with the death of Mrs. Evans and how much the Spanish kids have had subs this year. How do you replace her and Mrs. S-Jones when she retires?	3/28/2014 5:08 PM
9	I think that a more competitive pay schedule would encourage more teachers to travel to the small town of Burney when position do open. For example, it is very difficult to find qualified foreign language teachers who are willing to move to our small community. There are also teachers at the elementary school who commute from Redding. I think if the pay were more competitive, these teachers would be willing to live here, which would give them a higher stake in this community, rather than community until "something better" became available.	3/28/2014 5:07 PM
10	I think we generally have very good teachers, but this district has a challenge, I believe, being competitively able to lure teachers from out of the area. I am concerned with the need to replace our Spanish teacher and the upcoming need in the near future to get teachers to do all of what Mrs. Sugaya-Jones covers.	3/28/2014 4:11 PM
11	Some of the classes yes, the teachers beyond their value and some leave me wondering why is my child there???	3/28/2014 3:32 PM
12	As a community member and parent involved in the local education system, I find it regrettable to hear that there is a lack of good, talented, and interested teachers in our schools. It is a disservice to our children to hear of teachers who are not interested or do not teach certain parts of a subject (e.g. evolution in biology), because of personal beliefs. I hope that by the time my child is ready to attend one of the FRJUSD schools, there will be good teachers to teach her.	3/28/2014 3:16 PM
13	Low pay; More trainings	3/28/2014 8:35 AM
14	I agree they have TRIED to do this, but the recent issues at BHS with the Spanish teacher showed candidates as willing to go elsewhere even after signing a contract. The person hired subsequently was definitely NOT a talented professional.	3/27/2014 8:31 PM
15	At FRE we have wonderful new teachers. I have heard the same about other schools as well. Something must be working. Kudos to our older teachers who continue to improve	3/27/2014 7:52 PM
16	Pay scale and healthcare cap are horrible! The most qualified candidates often turn our schools down when offered a job because of the low pay and very high healthcare costs.	3/27/2014 7:48 PM
17	It seems more resources could be utilized to attract highly qualified teachers to move to our area.	3/27/2014 7:34 PM
18	They do the best they can, but imagine how much better they could be? The first-round draft picks look at the insurance dollars and pay scales and go for other jobs. We're left with what's left over.	3/27/2014 7:33 PM
19	The pay scale is low compared to many other districts. It has been seen in both sides of the district, and in other local places like Big Valley. Teachers are hard to find in this area because of many different reasons, however pay is one of those reasons. How many teachers have declined positions in this area because of either the pay scale or the benefits? How difficult was it to fill the Spanish position at Burney High School? How many teachers are going to retire in the next 5 years? How do you plan to fill those spots?	3/27/2014 7:24 PM
20	ie: spanish teacher	3/27/2014 7:11 PM
21	The low pay scale does not attract teachers to the area. This community offers very little to attract new people from out of the area and the low pay offered and lack of raises does not help the situation.	3/27/2014 7:09 PM
22	Very talented and well educated teachers.	3/27/2014 4:51 PM
23	This district has excellent teachers. Including those recently hired.	3/27/2014 3:53 PM

1	I do not think the transition has been that smooth especially for the kids in 9th grade math and the 6th grade becoming 7th graders next year. Too switch a whole teaching style mid-stream is wrong, plus common core math is setting our children up for failure.	3/28/2014 5:08 PM

At this age, I feel that teachers should be talking about the idea and even that going to college is important, but I do not feel that it is relevant to kindergarten or first grade students. 1	This would be very nice for parents that do not have a computer at home.	4/1/2014 3:03 PM
2	If we have the ability to monitor it in some way to be certain that equipment is left in the same condition as it was when families began using it. Otherwise, no, it is too imperative that the technology be available and working for the students each day.	3/30/2014 9:14 AM

2	The district does not provide adequate academic programs for students who are doing well. Where is GATE and AP classes. Why so much focus on lower students? 1	okay with present amount	4/4/2014 1:20 PM
2	Sometimes I think there are too many projects.	4/1/2014 3:03 PM
3	It seems that we have gone "over the top" with homework. We should look at the research and homework. Students do, after all, spend six hours a day at school. Some have upwards of three hours or more of homework a night. This is a lopsided lifestyle. Family time and activities should be a priority, with homework as a light portion of the evening. After all, current studies show that parents are most influential in their children's lives. Families need time to enjoy one another without being overwhelmed by MORE school work. There is a place for homework, it should be minimal practice of a topic the students already have been taught.	3/30/2014 9:14 AM
4	I do not think all teachers follow the district policy of homework and how many minutes per night it is supposed to be. I have a high schooler that has spent 3-4 hours doing homework or no hours. No consistency except at least one night a week it is piled on, sometimes even 2 nights a week. Maybe we should look at only 6 periods day like all Redding schools do so there is more instruction time. I know there are teachers who support this also.	3/28/2014 5:08 PM
5	The amount can sometimes be a challenge, but it is necessary, I believe, in order to fit everything in.	3/28/2014 4:11 PM

Telling a student who has boarded the bus for a track meet and the Coach boards the bus after everyone is on AND THEN the Coach chooses to tell the student in front of the whole bus he had to get off because of grades. The Coach Im sure knew the day before--should have contacted the parents or even the student when they were in PE to advise them they were not eligible to go, but instead waited after student boarded the bus!!! 1	This is the most bizarre practice our district engages in.	3/30/2014 9:14 AM
2	in that they are not allowed to "fail" their senior project and the parents do most of the work, why bother.	3/29/2014 8:34 PM
3	Yes it is important for the student to finish but I truly wonder what it teaches them? The senior is not the year for this project, junior year would be more appropriate, most seniors are busy with ACT/SAT, scholarships, classes, and applying to college.	3/28/2014 5:08 PM
4	I did not have a Senior Project when I was in High School. There were over 300 + students in my graduating class. I went to college, got a degree after wards--I did not have a Senior Project??? Not sure of the reason for it??	3/28/2014 3:32 PM
5	I agree the Senior Project is incredibly valuable. I don't necessarily feel the projects MUST have a volunteer component to be valuable. I think career oriented projects would be just as valuable, if not more valuable. I also think denying project proposals just because they have been done before is unnecessarily restrictive, and has resulted in several very worthwhile projects not being done.	3/27/2014 8:31 PM

6	While some outstanding things have been done with the Senior Projects, it seems like an added stress is added to students who are filling out federal forms, college applications, scholarship applications, etc... It often seems like another hoop for the students to jump through, rather than the life reaffirming exercise it is envisioned to be. In fact, many other districts have discontinued the senior project.	3/27/2014 7:48 PM
